DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

This was a frame, country grist mill, that sat on a one-story, fieldstone basement. The building was unusually picturesque for a mill, having a steep, gambrel roof, with a shed-roof addition on the west side. The race ran across the road into a wooden flume, that fed an overshot wooden wheel. Nearby, was an open-sided saw mill, that sat on high stone piers. This was fed by a separate race. The mill burned to its foundation about 1936, shortly after being photographed by H.A.B.S. A squatter lived in the stone basement for a number of years. Four, partially-collapsed walls remain today, and traces of the race, dam, and millpond can be seen in the park across the road from here.
